by Nick, Detroit

Now that the U.S. elections have taken place, we have an election themed round of puzzles. There have been many American politicians who were also famous for other reasons; let's meet some of them so we can determine where to go exactly one week after the majority of the votes were cast:

____ _ _ _ _ █ █ █ _ _ _ _ was a mayor (in the hometown of baseball's Reds in a year when the team finished in second place with that year's league MVP on their roster) and became a talk show host.

____ _ _ _ _ █ _ _ _ _ was a professional wrestler and later became governor of the state known for having ten thousand lakes.

____ _ _ _ █ █ █ played for the motor city's professional basketball team and later became the mayor.

____ _ _ _ _ █ █ _ _ was a film star as a child and became an ambassador to two countries. She is also the namesake of a non-alcoholic mixed drink.

█ _ _ _ _ _ █ _ _ _ _ _ █ _ _ _ _ was a bodybuilder and actor who later became governor of a state known for having some valuable metals.
