

A Barrel of Monkeys

In the Primate house Diana stared in confusion at the animals. "Someone's been monkeying around here." She said to herself.

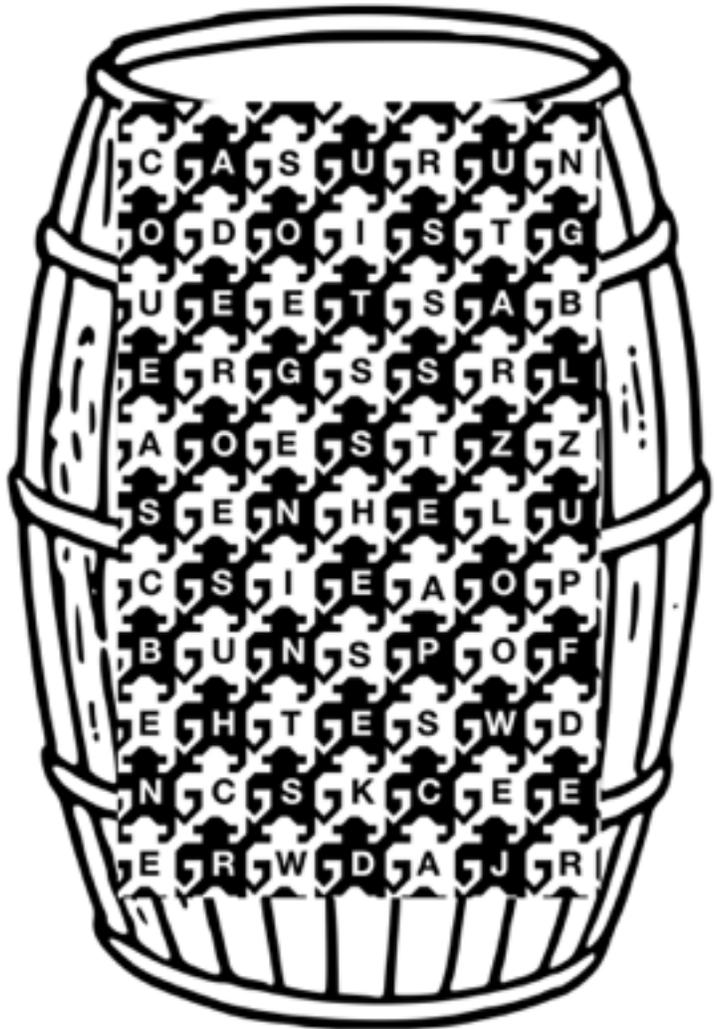

The primates had banded together by type, linking in chains that were tangled amongst each other.

As she examined closely she noticed some monkeys that were not part of the group, what they told her brought the investigation to a close.

Identify the lonely simians, eliminating the others, to find the reason why Diana stopped her investigation.

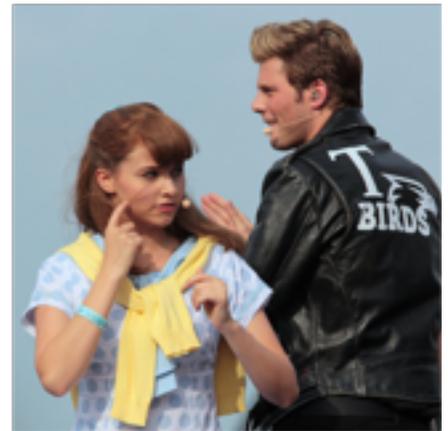

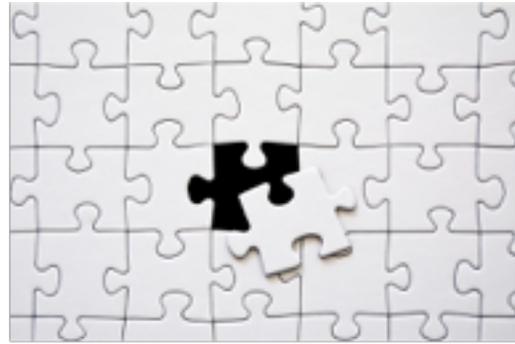

How to solve:

Monkeys connect to a monkey above, below, to their left or to their right, not diagonally. There are 11 types of monkey to find, use the picture clues on the other sheet to help you.
