

The next day...

(Don't read until you've finished all the other puzzles!)

Peter-

Your pets are fed. You neglected to mention that you had a bird! She's a terror; she liked to fly around my head, and, uh, make her mark on the paper while I was reading it to all the other creatures.

So I put her in her square cage. Then I used the pages of the newspaper to line the bottom of the cage. I found a way to use all four newspaper pages to make perfect square, with a bullseye precisely in the middle! Now she has something to aim at. (It helped to cut off or fold in the white margins on the right side of each page. And I made sure to keep my glasses straight.)

With the help of the other pets, I was able to connect the dots and realize why she wasn't satisfied with what I was reading. She prefers a different kind of journalism.

Sincerely,

Petopia Pet Sitters

The next day...

(Don't read until you've finished all the other puzzles!)

Peter-

Your pets are fed. You neglected to mention that you had a bird! She's a terror; she liked to fly around my head, and, uh, make her mark on the paper while I was reading it to all the other creatures.

So I put her in her square cage. Then I used the pages of the newspaper to line the bottom of the cage. I found a way to use all four newspaper pages to make perfect square, with a bullseye precisely in the middle! Now she has something to aim at. (It helped to cut off or fold in the white margins on the right side of each page. And I made sure to keep my glasses straight.)

With the help of the other pets, I was able to connect the dots and realize why she wasn't satisfied with what I was reading. She prefers a different kind of journalism.

Sincerely,

Petopia Pet Sitters