

Recap

Sporting Goods ↓ START	Potpourri ↓ C	Science ↓ D	Food ↓ A	Architecture ↓ B	Currency ↓ E
E This vulcanized rubber is served over ice. Hockey Puck (6, 4)	G These Eastern eating utensils are also the name of a ship's propeller. Chopsticks (10)	U These plus protons and neutrons make up an atom. Electrons (9)	G (continued) According to GLaDOS, it is a lie. Cake (4)	T This structure was built for the 1889 World's Fair. Eiffel Tower (6, 3)	S Thirty bits or fifty nap pennies. Quarter (7)
I It is both ammunition and punctuation. Bullet (6)	Telegraph operators use dots and these. Dashes (6)	Bees are fond of this polygon. Hexagon (7)	H This popular baked good is prepared with yeast. Bagel (8)	M As the tallest building in the city. Empire State Building (6, 5, 8)	The isle of Yap has large currency made of stone. Stone (9)
These "birds" are targeted with a shotgun. Clay Pigeon (4, 0)	Examples include cat's eye, oxblood, and egg. Marble (7)	This analog calculator helped win WWII and put the U.S. on top. Slide Rule (5, 4)	This may be candy or may be a personal favorite device. Life Savers (4, 3)	From this iconic tower, you can see four mountain ranges and a sound. Space (5, 0)	Canada recently discontinued this coin. Penny (5)
G This is the tool of scalars. Oar (3)	This cream-filled legal defense spawned the WWII movie. Twinkie (7)	Galileo used one of these to study the heavens. Telescope (9)	Examples include Chicago, Hawaiian, & wood. Pizza (8)	Frank Lloyd Wright designed this temple of modernism. Guggenheim (10)	$800
These were used by Pelagias during war, athletes during the Olympics. Javelins (8)	This geometric solid can give you a critical hit. Icosahedron (11)	This vertical conveyor described by Arthur C. Clarke reaches orbit. Space Elevator (5, 0)	"As American as baseball and apple pie." Apple Pie (5, 3)	In 1968, this structure was "discovered" at 3,000,000 BC. Monolith (5, 0)	$1000

And we are back from our commercial break! Let me tell you, this round of Jeopardy! has been exciting and is shaping up to be a great one as we're winning the play we've seen so far.

"EIGHT MAGNUMS"

- Ana started at the top of the board with Sporting Goods.
- Brian quickly took control and answered the next two questions.
- Curtis grabbed two more Sporting Goods questions then dashed over to Food, where he answered the first question.
- Ana cleared out the remainder of the Food category.
- Brian took control and circled around to Architecture.
- Curtis took the next two questions.
- Ana then took the final two Architecture questions.
- Brian zipped through the first three questions of Potpourri.
- Curtis grabbed the remainder of the category.
- Ana dotted over to Science and answered the first three questions.
- Brian cleared out Science.
- Curtis is now working his way through Currency.